Upper Noe Neighbors

UNN was re-established in 1988, resuming a neighborhood association that dates back to the mid-20th Century, at least.

Our mission is to promote the collective interest of the people living in or running a business or institution in Upper Noe Valley.

We act to inform the public of matters important to our residents, to seek their input, and to present a forceful collective voice in dealing with civic, social, and safety issues. We take an inclusive approach to improving life in the southern part of the Noe Valley and the surrounding areas. We meet approximately every other month at Upper Noe Recreation Center.

Please consider joining UNN and working with us to make our neighborhood the BEST it can be.

Extent of UNN membership

Upper Noe Valley is one of San Francisco's oldest neighborhoods, encompassing the southern part of the valley from Cesar Chavez Street to the edge of the valley at Miguel Street. Upper Noe overlaps and includes much of the Fairmount Tract, which runs south of 30th Street. In recent times, the City designated the Fairmount as part of Glen Park for administrative purposes. Thus, Upper Noe straddles the present boundaries of Noe Valley and Glen Park. Many folk south of 30th Street consider themselves residents of Upper Noe. Our membership includes residents well beyond these boundaries and we are happy to call all of them neighbors.

Let's Talk Topography

Much of the success of our neighborhood is attributable to its walkability. Church, Dolores and Sanchez Streets create excellent north south paths through the valley floor, perfect for pedestrians and rich with transportation options. Our park, shops, restaurants, and institutions create opportunity to mingle and share with our neighbors, to build community. However, much of our neighborhood is also a steep hillside that rises over 280 feet from Church to Diamond Street, providing stunning views and challenging terrain. Sparse transportation options east and west can limit accessibility to all that our community offers. We seek ideas and solutions that consider the entire community, and the often-competing requirements of our residents, to build a better Upper Noe for everyone.
